

Let's put our heads together

Everybody knows that it's bad news when your parents are asked to see the head teacher, even worse if you have to go with them.

However, this was not quite true for the Norris family, parents Colin and Jackie and daughters Sally and Joanne (now Joanne Butler), when they visited Rosie Cowan at Essex Primary School.

Colin had been an Essex pupil in the 1950s and Joanne and Sally in the 1970s. On Thursday, 23 March 2017 the family met around the table in Rosie's office, poring over newspaper clippings and old school photo albums and log books. All noting events such as how the school welcomed back Evacuees after World War 2.

As names and faces were recognised on the pages, stories from both generations began to be told including how, during the initial refurbishment of the school in the 1970s, pupils, among them Sally, carried books on planks of wood, held by a pupil at either end, from one building to the other.

As Rosie, who had taught Joanne during her time at Essex, showed the former pupils around the school, they discussed the new developments at the school and also what had remained unchanged. They spoke about the layering of memories arising from returning to the school: the sinks and staff rooms and looking for signs on the carpet of a certain stain from spilled milk.

The story became more fantastical as the sisters revealed how, on the same day in September 2016, they both found out that they were applying to become head teachers. Sally takes up her post at William Davies Primary School in September and Joanne has been Head of St Paul's School in Buckinghamshire since January.

The new head teachers were introduced to current Essex pupils, including one young lady who now sits where Joanne did during her time at the school. The pupils were very impressed when they were told that both Sally and Joanne were now head teachers and took on board Rosie's words of encouragement about what pupils from the school can achieve.

The discussion turned to how growing up and developing a career in the Borough instilled a passion for continuing to develop education standards and deliver the best experience for today's pupils.

Rosie said: "This is an exciting reunion and what teaching is all about. I have never been in any doubt as to just how much the pupils who learn, play and grow in this school can achieve but I am so pleased that the pupils themselves have been able to see what they can do in the future by meeting people who have been at the school and have gone on to do great things. Having several generations of Essex pupils in one room like that was a wonderful sight and I look forward to seeing just how much Sally and Joanne go on to achieve in their own headships."

Newham progress

Newham boasts more primary schools for progress in reading, writing and mathematics than any other Local Authority, according to a government list.

A list, based on 2016 key stage 2 results, shows the 307 schools that make up the top 10% nationally of average progress scores in reading, writing and mathematics.

All schools on the list will receive a congratulatory letter from the Minister of State for Schools, Nick Gibb, MP.

For our schools, Cleves, Curwen, Monega, Ravenscroft, Rosetta, St Antony's RC, St Edward's Catholic, St Stephen's, Star and Tollgate were all recognised.

Ellen Wilkinson Primary School and Little Ellies Children Centre hosted Science Week to enrich our learning and teaching of Science.

The theme was Think Science, Do Science and Talk Science. Activities took place for each year group, including the children's centre, and teachers were encouraged to "get messy" and try something new.

The National Curriculum states that the "quality and variety of language that pupils hear and speak are key factors in developing scientific vocabulary and articulating scientific concepts clearly and precisely." This became the foundation for the week.

Pupils undertook a range of activities to promote scientific enquiry focusing on the use of scientific language in and out of the classroom.

The pupils began the week exploring different professions in the Science, Technology and Engineering fields. The Year 5 pupils attended local secondary school, Kingsford Community School to participate in Science activities.

Assemblies, presentations and workshops delivered by Mother Nature Science, Mad Science and the STEM ambassadors brought awareness of the environment and promoted STEM careers questioning gender bias in the world of work.

Pupils also participated in activities delivered by different organisations such as the RSPB and the Benjamin Franklin House Student Science Centre. Some of the trainee teachers attended a CPD event delivered by the Royal Astronomical Society. Meanwhile, PE lessons focused on Sports Science delivered by PE specialists and Kick London.

The week culminated in an American-style Science Fair where pupils displayed and demonstrated to parents/carers the marble runs completed as part of the STEM home/school competition.

The Ellen Wilkinson School community would like to offer their sincerest gratitude to all the visitors who made the Science Week enriching and an enjoyable experience for the pupils and staff.

In memory of Joan Jones

From Lorna Jackson, Head Teacher (Maryland Primary School)

Some of us who have worked in Newham since the 1980's may remember Joan Jones, who was Head Teacher of Maryland Primary School from 1979 until 1996 when she retired. Joan was a former President of Newham NAHT and was a mentor and role model to the young school leaders of her day. She died last week from injuries sustained from a fall at home.

Mrs Jones was one of those heads from the old school, believing in good manners, good spoken English and a smart appearance. Many visitors would straighten their ties and smooth down their hair before entering the school. She was a formidable, well respected lady who inspired everyone who worked with her. Maryland Primary School community will cherish her memory.

RE inclusive education award

Newham Council's Standing Advisory Council for Religious Education (SACRE) was awarded runner up by judges of the 2017 Accord Inclusivity Award for the range of its innovative practices.

The national award seeks to discover those SACREs that work hardest at promoting the growth of mutual understanding between those of different religious beliefs.

Guidance on assemblies produced by Newham SACRE for local schools stood out for its interpretation of how schools can adhere to the worship laws while also providing assemblies that seek to be inclusive of all and which attempt to forge shared values by considering teachings from different religious and non-religious traditions.

The SACREs inclusive approach was echoed in the local authority's RE syllabus, which ensures local schools teach about non-religious beliefs alongside the major world faiths. The SACRE also drew praise from the award judges for organising separate Infant, Youth and Student SACREs, with members from the Student SACRE executive contributing to every adult SACRE meeting. The SACRE also drew praise for including Humanist as a full voting member and for offering SACRE members training in the teaching of RE so that they could be better informed.

Rabbi Dr Jonathan Romain MBE, who served as Chair of the 2017 Accord Inclusivity Award judging panel, said: "The judges are delighted to recognise Newham SACRE as one of the most innovative and religiously inclusive in the country. Some SACREs are conscientious about ensuring they include a wide breadth of voices, but one that is overlooked is that of pupils. Judges were particularly impressed that Newham's approach also includes ensuring that the views of pupils themselves are considered and acted upon within the SACRE's decision making process. We hope this and other aspects of Newham's work will inspire others."

Responding to the news about Newham SACRE's success, its Chair, the Rev Jeremy Fraser, said: "Our aim has been to celebrate our diversity. We want to show that to be inclusive does not mean watering down our faith or beliefs, instead it means lifting our beliefs and encouraging debate and thought in our pupils. This Award is a recognition that we are one of the most active and diverse SACREs in England and Wales."

Now in its eighth year, the annual Accord Inclusivity Award has previously sought to reward the state funded schools that work hardest at promoting an inclusive ethos and advancing the growth of mutual understanding, particularly on the grounds of religion and ethnicity. The 2017 Award was open to all SACREs in England and Wales.

Joining Rabbi Romain on the judging panel were former National Lead for Religious Education within Ofsted, Alan Brine; Parliamentary Joint Committee on National Security member, Baroness Kishwer Falkner; Chief Executive Officer at the Religious Education Council of England and Wales, Rudolf Elliott Lockhart; and Anglican Priest and broadcaster, the Rev Ruth Scott.

Each local authority in England and Wales is required to convene a SACRE that monitors the assemblies and Religious Education (RE) that is taught in most local schools. Though often overlooked, SACREs can have a crucial role in boosting the growth locally of respect and empathy between those of different religions and beliefs, given the potential of high quality RE to advance these aims.

Supporting Young People in the Secondary Education Setting

Facilitator: Catherine Munns

- Lead Training and Development Co-ordinator and Counsellor, Brentwood Catholic Children's Society (BCCS)
- Team Leader, Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS) (2008-2015)

Catherine studied at the Tavistock Clinic and has a Post-Graduate Diploma in children's mental health. She is also a fully qualified Counsellor with extensive experience of working with children, adolescents and families. During her role as Team Leader at CAMHS, Catherine began to deliver training to schools.

Co-Facilitator: Louise Picton

Counsellor and Clinical Supervisor at the Brentwood Catholic Children's Society (BCCS), Louise has worked in schools for 16 years in an educational and therapeutic capacity.

Schools are increasingly challenged with understanding the complexity of children and young people's emotional health and wellbeing. In addition to supporting pupils' emotional health and wellbeing, schools are also tasked with the responsibility of promoting academic achievement.

This half-day Workshop is aimed at all Secondary School staff with a view to empowering you "to be part of the response". The focus of this workshop will be on:

(a) Identifying and understanding the unconscious processes children and young people engage us in, and the ways in which we can respond; and

(b) Promoting healthy staffing bodies by supporting staff to understand the complex unconscious processes which we can become engaged, and immersed, in.

Helping staff to navigate, and 'tune in' to, the subtleties of challenging and de-skilling interactions with young people will undoubtedly result in the young person responding more positively to their teacher; their setting; and this will translate into their ability to learn. I hope that the additional upshot of understanding such interactions will be that your staff will feel calmer, self-aware, upskilled, and in a better position to help.

"Schools need to have a clear awareness of the extent and nature of mental health problems in children and young people and of their responsibility to be part of the response, not least because these problems do not go away. Half of lifetime mental illness starts by the age of 14."

Partnership for wellbeing in schools (2015)

Feedback from recent workshops run by Catherine Munns:

'Excellent course. Highly recommended to other colleagues who work within schools or other child-centred professions.'

'This is one of the best training courses I've attended in the last three years.'

'Catherine was very tuned into how we were feeling and gave excellent targeted support for us.'

'Well put together ... I felt very confident in Catherine's knowledge and ability.'
